NATIONAL FAMILY LITERACY DAY November 1

Families who read together succeed together.

There are more reasons than ever before for families to read aloud to their children from a young age. Besides the fact that reading creates quiet, quality family time, it also develops early vocabulary skills.

If that wasn't enough to get a family reading together, check out these reasons:

Reading expands their attention span and yours. Read chapter books even to your youngest child. They may drift off to sleep, but they are listening and their attention span will lengthen.

It's free. Books can be checked out from the library.

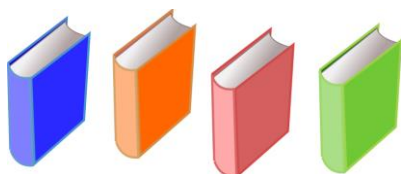

Improve listening skills. You can read well above a child's level, and they will still listen and comprehend.

It's portable and reading doesn't require batteries.

Reading is a tool that can never be unlearned. Once a child learns to read, they never stop.

Reading improves imagination and creativity.

Reading opens up a dialogue between parent and child.

Congratulations to our November Students of the Month!
